

Abstract

The present invention relates to an antioxidant for an organic material. The invention also relates to the use of the antioxidant for treating an organic material, particularly paper, and to a method for treating the same.